

Tropical Birds

The Tropical Birds section has a variety of aviaries from the temperature controlled tropical house (Blackburn Pavilion), including outside aviaries and ponds dotted around the zoo. Volunteering in this section requires supporting bird keepers to help care for London Zoo's collection of tropical birds, and to help maintain their enclosures. Tasks typical of an average day volunteering on the Tropical Birds section include food preparation, cleaning animal enclosures and off show areas, providing enrichment, and communicating with members of public. In most cases, volunteers will be required to support inside the aviaries with the birds.
